Jessica Cummings, PT, DPT

- B.S., University of Illinois, 2007
- D.P.T, Southwest Baptist University, 2010

Jessica knew she wanted to be in the medical field when she was only a junior high school. She didn't really have an interest in being a doctor or personal trainer. Her passion: working with patients one-on-one throughout their course of care, from alleviating symptoms to preventing further injuries.

She chose physical therapy—and never looked back.

It's about treating the whole patient through, what Jessica calls a continuum of care. As she gets to know her patients, she gets to know more about their bodies and how to help them get back to where they want to be and how they want to move.

Jessica's treatment specialties include:

- orthopedic manual therapy
- functional exercise
- muscle imbalances
